CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

Mr. W. H. Demaine lef today for Wellington, Va, where he will spend several weeks.

Sergeant Oliver S. Stone now stationed at Camp Lee, Virginia, is spending a few days with his mother in this city.

The Seventeenth Virginia regiment Chapter, U. D. C., will meet at the residence of the president, 504 Duke street at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. Hugh McGuire, who have been visiting Dr. McGuire's mother, Mrs. Hunter McGuire, in Richmond, have returned to their home in this city.

Major J. Randall Caton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Caton, who was recently promoted from captain to major, spent Sunday the guest of his parents. Major Caton is now brigade inspector at Camp Lee, Va.

Mrs. S. E. Keller received a letter from her son, Oscar, who has been overseas for several months, stating he is in the hospital recovering from being gassed. He expects to join his company soon.

A banquet will be given tonight by the Relief Hook and Ladder Company at its house on Prince street. The banquet is in honor of the arrival of the new city service truck. Members of city council and others have been invited to attend.

Hundreds of Alexandrians have planned to go to Washington tonight to take part in the big demonstration in that city. The departments in Washington were closed at noon today and many persons from here this afternoon visited that city and took part in the United war work parade.

Mary Elizabeth Fletcher, seven years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Charles H. Fletcher, died this morning at the residence of her grandfather, Mr. George W. Bontz, 422 North Alfred street. Her funeral will take place at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

A luncheon will be served on Wednesday to all who are helping with the work at the Red Cross rooms. It is earnestly hoped that as many as possible will be present, as a day without interruption will accomplish much towards completing the large consignment of work from Washington.

RICHMOND TONIGHT

William S. Hart's new Artcraft picture, The Border Wireless, which will be shown at the Richmond Theater tonight has been designated by those who have had previews of the production as a picture "with a real thrill." Of course, every Hart picture has a thrill, a consistent story with action in every foot, but the fact that this one is concerned largely with the machinations of a band of Hun plotters in America, on the borders of Mexico, gives added interest and enables the star to depict certain phases of the war at home which are not only timely, but decidedly fascinating.

DIED

DIED

GRONAU—On Monday, November 11, 1918, at 7:30 a. m., ROBERT E. GRONAU, husband of Alice Price Gronau, aged 58. Notice of funeral hereafter. Washington and Baltimore papers please copy. 268-1t.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dearest and only child LEOLA K. TOOMBS, who departed this life one years ago, November 10, 1917.

Precious darling she has left us,
Left us, yes, forever more.
But we hope to meet our loved one,
On that bright and happy shore.

Lonely the house and sad the hours,
Since our dear one has gone,
But oh, a brighter home than ours
In heaven is now her own.

By her mother and father
Lawrence and Nellie Toombs.

WILLIAM IS AN EXILE

Former Kaiser Flees Into Holland—Shivers When Called Upon to Sign Now a Thing of the Past. His Abdication—Prussian Dynasty

Amsterdam, Nov. 11.—Accompanied by the Empress, the Kaiser has fled in an automobile to Maastricht, Holland. No decision has been reached by the Dutch government as to whether the Emperor is to be permitted to remain within Holland. Nor is it known what attitude the allied governments will take with regard to the future fate of the former Emperor.

Later the Daily News learns from its Rotterdam correspondent that the Kaiser, the Empress, the crown prince and the imperial suites arrived at Maastricht, Holland, at 11 o'clock last night.

They are awaiting the permission of the Dutch government for their proceeding to Middachten, near Arnheim.

Later the Daily Mail's correspondent said the imperial party included "an old man believed to be Hindenburg."

Another rumor said the whole German army staff had reached Maastricht.

The Dutch government denies the imperial party was allowed to proceed to Middachten, saying the Kaiser's train was being closely guarded by Dutch soldiers.

London, Nov. 11.—The Dutch government will intern the Kaiser and his entire party, telegraphs the Daily Mail's correspondent at The Hague.

The Kaiser arrived in a special train at Maastricht, and along with it came ten automobiles filled with rifles, the correspondent adds.

London, Nov. 11.—King Ludwig of Bavaria and Crown Prince Rupprecht, the Bavarian heir apparent, have fled, the Daily Express learns.

The King of Saxony will abdicate, the correspondent adds.

London, Nov. 11.—Emperor Charles and Empress Zita of Austria, have fled from Wartogg Castle to Switzerland, the Daily Express learns from its Copenhagen correspondent.

London, Nov. 11.—Emperor signed a letter of abdication Saturday morning at the German Grand Headquarters in the presence of Crown Prince Frederick William and Field Marshal Hindenburg, according to a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

The German Crown Prince signed his renunciation to the throne shortly afterward.

It is believed that King Ludwig of Bavaria and King Frederick August of Saxony also have abdicated.

The ex-Kaiser and the former Crown Prince were expected to take leave of their troops on Saturday, but nothing has been said regarding their movements.

Before placing his signature to the document an urgent message from Philip Scheidemann, who was a Socialist member without portfolio in the Imperial Cabinet, was handed to the Emperor. He read it with a shiver. Then he signed the paper, saying:

"It may be for the good of Germany."

The Emperor was deeply moved. He consented to sign the document only when he received the news of the latest events in the empire.

Serious food difficulties are expected in Germany owing to the stoppage of trains. The Council of the Regency dill take the most drastic steps to re-establish order.

NOTICE, ODD FELLOWS

The World War Is Over

Hostilities Cease at 6 A. M. Washington Time

PRESIDENT WILSON READS ARMISTICE TERMS TO CONGRESS THIS AFTERNOON

Signed at midnight last night, the armistice became effective at 6 o'clock this morning Washington time, and hostilities ceased.

President Wilson read the terms of the armistice at a joint session of the Senate and House in the hall of the House at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

At the same hour Premier Clemenceau read the terms to the French chamber of deputies.

On a half sheet of White House stationery President Wilson early this morning wrote in lead pencil a message to the American people, which was transcribed on typewritten sheets and given to the press.

In writing those words President Wilson gave expression to the two thoughts which have been uppermost in his mind since the day, in April, 1917, when this country entered the war.

First, to accomplish the ends, through victory, for which this nation entered the war.

Second, to help bind up the wounds of war inflicted upon innocent nations abroad and aid them to the realization of ideals of democracy cherished by the people of the United States.

President Wilson's announcement, in simple and modest terms, was almost a prayer of thanksgiving for the victory and invocation to his countrymen to give heed to the task yet before them.

There was no advance information of the definite terms of the armistice, but it was indicated that they provide for the complete destruction of the German military machine which plunged a world into five years of blood and torture, and which like a Frankenstein, has now destroyed its masters.

With the signing of the terms, which was announced at the State Department, and later proclaimed by the President, it was officially announced at the War Department that all draft calls had been suspended.

Proclamation by the President

My Fellow Countrymen:

The armistice was signed this morning. Everything for which America fought has been accomplished. It will now be our fortunate duty to assist by example, by sober, friendly counsel and by material aid in the establishment of just democracy throughout the world.

Woodrow Wilson,
The White House, November 11,

TERMS OF ARMISTICE

The German surrender terms include:

Cessation of hostilities.

Evacuation of invaded territories, including Alsace-Lorraine and Luxemburg.

Surrender of vast amounts of guns and equipment.

Evacuation of left bank of Rhine.

Surrender of vast amounts of rolling stock in occupied territory.

Abandonment of Bucharest and Brest treaties.

Unconditional surrender of all German forces in East Africa.

Reparation for damage done.

Surrender of scores of submarines and larger war craft.

Concentration of aircraft at designated points.

Evacuation of all Black Sea ports.

Restoration of all allied and United States merchant vessels.

Duration of armistice to be thirty days.

HUNS SIGN ARMISTICE

President Wilson Announces at an Early Hour This Morning That Teuton Delegates Had Met all Requirements of the Allies—News Received With Great Rejoicing.

The armistice terms sent by the allies to Germany were signed by German delegates at 5 a. m. today (Paris time).

Hostilities ceased at 11 a. m. (Paris time), which was 6 a. m. New York time.

The announcement of the signing of the armistice was made public by the State Department at 2:45 a. m.

It was announced that the terms of the armistice could not be made public until some time later this morning.

Germany had been given seventy-two hours in which to reply to the terms submitted by Foch. This time would have expired at 11 a. m. (Paris time), and the Germans had only six hours left in which to meet the allies' terms.

The President was notified at once and hastened to announce that he was very much gratified that the terms had been accepted by the German delegates.

ROBERT E. GRONAU DIES

For Seven Years he Was Chief of the Alexandria Fire Department

Robert E. Gronau, fifty-eight years old, former chief of the Alexandria Fire Department, dropped dead at 7:30 o'clock this morning at his residence, 232 North St. Asaph street. Heart trouble was the cause of his sudden demise.

Chief Gronau for seven years was chief of the city fire department and tendered his resignation as such December 1, 1917, owing to declining health.

He was a tailor and for many years was employed in that business in this city and later he opened an establishment on King street. He closed his place because of continued ill health.

The deceased besides his wife, Mrs. Alice Price Gronau, is survived by two daughters, Miss M. Alice and Miss Janet V. Gronau.

Mr. Gronau enjoyed a wide circle of friends who will regret to hear of his death. The arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

MRS. JANE E. WARFIELD DIES

Mrs. Jane E. Warfield, widow of Andrew A. Warfield, died at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her residence, 119 North Columbus street. She had been in failing health for a long time, although she had only been confined to her home for the past five weeks.

The deceased is survived by a son Allan A. Warfield, Washington, and two sisters and two brothers as follows: Miss Emma Lee Pattie, and Mrs. R. D. Wood, this city; Marshall D. Pattie, Madison Courthouse, Va. and Otho Pattie, Waynesboro, Va.

Her funeral will take place at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from her late residence and services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the M. E. Church, South.

CORPORATION COURT

The Corporation Court convened this morning. Judge Samuel G. Brent presided in the absence of Judge L. C. Barley.

The grand jury returned true bills in the cases of the Commonwealth vs. several parties who had been sent on from the Police Court for violating the prohibition law.

The court later took a recess until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

RECEIPT OF NEWS HERE

Whistles and Bells Turn Loose When Flash is Received of Signing of Armistice A Victory Celebration Planned For City.

With the ringing of bells and whistles at 4:30 o'clock this morning Alexandrians received news of the signing of the armistice. Every bell and every whistle in the city let loose and the racket was kept up for fully half an hour. The whistle at the Potomac railroad yards, north of Alexandria, was the first to break the tidings that the armistice had been signed and soon the whistles and bells in this city joined in the chorus. Only a few minutes previous to the demonstration an alarm of fire had been sounded and many persons got up and hurriedly dressed believing that there was a big fire in progress. The fire, however, proved to be only a small shed at the foot of Franklin street and it soon was learned that the whistles and bells were sounding the victory over Germany.

This city is planning a big demonstration which will take the form of a parade and mass meeting to be held shortly. Robert L. Payne, president of the Chamber of Commerce, today issued a call for a meeting to arrange for a monster victory celebration.

FIRE THIS MORNING

Shed at Foot of Franklin Street Destroyed—Horse of Reliance Engine Drops Dead.

A big wooden shed at the plant of the Marine Railway Shipbuilding and Coal Company at the foot of Franklin street, was destroyed by fire shortly after 4 o'clock this morning. It is supposed that a cigarette stump dropped in the shed last night caused the fire.

A valuable horse known as "Jeff" of the Reliance Fire Company dropped dead while responding to the alarm.

THE BIG DRIVE OPENS

Collections and Pledges in Today's United War Campaign Amounts to $5,734—Solicitors Guests of R. S. Jones at Luncheon

Cash and pledges amounting to $5,734 was collected today for the United War Work Compaign of the seven great agencies engaged in the task. This collection was made by a committee of about sixty citizens who were engaged in the task. The result of the first day's drive was satisfactory to the committee and the indications are that Alexandria will raise her allotment which is $30,000 before the end of the week.

Those engaged in the work assembled in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce at 9:45 o'clock and each was given his work for the day and each person engaged in the task set out with the full determination to see that Alexandria goes "over the top" in this drive in order to see that the soldiers, marines and sailors are given the required comforts which only can be accomplished by such organizations as are now engaged in this great work.

Promptly at 12.30 o'clock the members of the committee met at the enlisted Men's Club where they were tendered a luncheon by Robert S Jones, chairman of the committee in charge of the drive. At this luncheon the report of the day's work was made. All reported having met with success This committee will meet at the same hour tomorrow morning in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce and resume the work of collecting.

The ladies' Committees are today soliciting contributions for the cause in the banks and on the street cars. The peace news has not dampened the ardor of those who have so willingly responded on all previous drives and in some instances it has caused persons to give more than they contemplated giving.

The merchants, professional men and a large number of others have been rated by the committee into classes in order that the necessary amount may be raised without delay. All should give all they can as between 1,000 and 1,200 Alexandria men have been drafted into the service of our country. Some of these men have made the supreme sacrifice in order to make the world safe for democracy.

In view of these facts every citizen, rich and poor, should give without stint to the United War Work fund.

The luncheon given was served by a number of ladies interested in the cause.

W. L. Duncan, of the Du Pont Powder Company, was a guest at the luncheon. Mr. Duncan is in charge of the war fund campaigns of the Du Pont Company and today he was busy urging wage earners to contribute, at least, one day's wages in thirty days.

Rev. Dr. Regester to Deliver Address

Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the M. E. Church South, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night will deliver an illustrated lecture in the Young People's building on the work of the seven great agencies united in this big drive for funds to carry on the demobilization. Admission to the lecture will be free and every man and woman in the city is invited to hear the distinguished clergyman and see the wonderful pictures taken from actual scenes of the work now being done.

NOTICE

There will be an open meeting held by the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers Wednesday November 13th, at 8 p. m., over the Alexandria National Bank. All who feel interested please attend,

U. S. CASUALTIES 69, 450

America's casualties in the war made public up to the hour of the cessation of hostilities, totaled 69,420. Of these, 12,460 were killed in action.

Thousands more have been killed, wounded, or captured, and it probably will be many weeks before the list is compiled.

REVOLT IN GERMANY

Berlin in Hands of Revolutionaries—Similar Conditions Exist in Other Cities of Empire—Red Flag Flying Over Palace and City Hall.

Copenhagen, Nov. 11.—Berlin is in the hands of the German revolutionaries, The revolt sweeps on throughout the empire. From the crown prince palace, the city hall, the post office and all other buildings in the capital flies the red flag.

Seizure of Berlin was not, however, brought about without terrific street battles, though the new government, in an official statement sent broadcast attempts to minimize the bloodshed.

The general tendency of the news is that the bulk of the military including the majority of officers, joined the revolt as soon as they saw the people were in dead earnest. This, for the present, has averted a colossal civil war, which may, however, flare up as soon as the armistice is signed and 4,000,000 soldiers, beaten and embittered, pour back into the strife-torn Fatherland.

The formation of a Socialistic government is in progress. Only three non-Socialist ministers are slated to participate. Among them will be Erzberger, the Centrist leader and head of the armistice commission. There will be three independent Socialists in the ministry.

Prince Maximilian of Baden has vanished from the scene. Dr. Friedrich Ebert, the Socialist deputy, is acting chancellor.

He, together with all other leaders excepting a few radicals, is bending might and main to restore order and avert further bloodshed.

Steps are under way for the election of a constituent assembly to decide the future form of government. If the Socialists have their way, Germany will become a federated republic. Kings, grand dukes and dukes are abdicating or swept away. Wurttemburg and Schleswig-Holstein have been proclaimed republics.

Four principal men are forging the destinies of the new Germany:

1. Dr. Ebert, head of what is virtually a provisional government.

2. Philip Scheidemann, majority Socialist leader, who is mingling with the masses, exhorting them not to follow in the path of the Russian Bolsheviki; but the main plan and execution of the revolt are strikingly along Bolshevist lines. Everywhere councils of soldiers, workmen and peasants are set up.

3. Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Independent Socialist leader with anarchistic tendencies. He is in the main motive-power behind the executive and of the rebellion.

4. Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who appears to retain the good will of the bulk of the population and to have the main fighting forces still in hand.

London, Nov. 11.—At the height of Saturday's revolt in Berlin a machine gun battle was fought in the imperial palace, from which last night fluttered the red banner of rebellion, according to the Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent.

Loyalist troops barricaded themselves in the imperial stables, and here, too, a hot machine gun battle was fought before the revolutionaries had overcome all resistance.

Berlin's cafes last night were crowded and the city is a pandemonium of joy. There was little disorder. Huge crowds surged through the streets, happy as circus crowds," the correspondent of the Rotterdamsche Courant says. The Berliners are hoarse from singing the Marseillaise. Here and there when officers in full uniform are encountered, they are stripped of their trimmings. Most of the military however, have gone over to the rebels.

GRAND THEATER

"Paying His Debt" is the name of a Triangle feature in which Roy Stewart plays a dual role with remarkable success.

This picture ranks with that masterpiece, "Boss of the Lazy Y," in beauty of photography, intensity of story and fine acting. There is also an interesting theme in the idea of the "lunger" who goes West in search of health and finds that the patience of the people has been exhausted by the repeated importunities of his kind. "Paying His Debt" is more than a mere Western thriller; it is an appeal to humanity. "Paying His Debt" will be shown at the Grand Theater tonight.

THE DAWN OF PEACE

The people of the civilized portion of the earth did not go off half-cocked today. Long before the stars were out of the sky this morning President Wilson announced from the White House that the Germans had signed the terms for an armistice, which is a virtual surrender of the armies of that haughty horde which have been running amuck during the past four years.

In Alexandria the sound of sirens at the Potomac railroad yards and other places were simultaneous with an alarm of fire sent in from the shipyard. An old frame shed was burning, one, by the way, which has been gazed on during the past three quarters of a century. The shriek of whistles in Washington, wafted to Alexandria by the gentle northwest breeze, was telling the story of the virtual end of the war while the fire apparatus was dashing down Fairfax street. Most people were awakened, and they had no inclination to turn over and take an early morning nap, as the good news could not be dismissed from the mind, hence there were many early breakfasts in our city and but scant attention was paid to the fire.

It was generally agreed that the commission sent by the Germans would agree to the terms of the allies and bring the terrible war to a close. This has happened. Tears and smiles mingled as parents of young men registered for the draft realized that fighting had ceased, and that the Temple of Janus was about to be closed after having stood open four years and three months.

The cruel Hun has been conquered. He had been looking for the foolkiller half a century. The nation is now prostrate and bleeding red republicanism having succeeded autocracy. What we do to others others will do to us is an ancient observation. They who were instrumental in looting Belgium and northern France are now receiving from their own people treatment similar to those they visited upon others. The royal families are fleeing the country in terror, while the civilized world is crying for their blood.

Germany's day of reckoning has come. She will disgorge all her plunder which she has been taking from weak and neighboring nations during the past hundred or more years.

When the sun rose over the Maryland hills this morning it brought an angelic message—"Peace on earth to men of good will." We have preferred to quote these words from another translation of the Bible instead of the King James version.

Verily the world has at last been made fit to live in.

EXIT KAISER.

William Hohenzollern, former German autocrat, who did not, so far as we know, exclaim," I am William II. and beside me there is no other," but deported himself in a manner which showed he imbibed the principles of Louis XV., of France, who said "After them the flood," today finds none so poor to do him reverence. On Saturday, while trembling, he obeyed the mandate of his people and signed his abdication. William and his family, together with other former wearers of the purple, made hasty trips to Holland in order to escape the wrath of the exasperated people they basely betrayed.

Walter Scott in his life of Napoleon, speaking of the result of the battle of Waterloo, says: "Napoleon is crushed, but the Corsican has placed crape upon every other home in Britain." The Kaiser is crushed, and during the past four years he has caused this sombre emblem of mourning to flutter from millions of homes not only in other countries but the Fatherland also.

Momentous events have followed closely in each other's wake during the past forty-eight hours. The announcement of the exist of the Kaiser, was almost synchronous with the news of the revolt of the German people which has spread with the rapidity of a prairie fire. Germany is now in the throes of a revolution which may be more serious than that in France at the close of the eighteenth century which caused Louis XVI. to lose his throne and his head.

The former Kaiser is now cowering in Holland among people who have no sympathy for him. He is not in far-away St. Helena, but in a position to realize the truth of the words of Horace Greeley: "Fame is a vapor; popularity an accident; riches take wings; the only earthly certainty is oblivion; no man can foresee what a day may bring forth, while those who cheer today will often curse tomorrow."

Berlin revolutionists are now singing the "Marseillaise" in front of the Royal palace in Berlin, while the Prussian Crown Prince (who said years ago that when he became Emperor he would have war just for the fun of it), the King of Wurttemberg, the King of Bavaria, the Grand Duke of Hesse, the Duke of Brunswick, and, it is believed, the King of Saxony, are fleeing from the wrath to come.

A picture printed by London Punch during the latter part of the nineties has oft been reproduced during the past four years. It represented an ocean steamer with Bismarck, who had been dismissed by the young ruler, descending the gangway. His royal master, attired in the glaring uniform of an admiral, was on the "bridge" above. The words "Dismissing the Pilot," told the story. The German people have now dismissed the captain.

RISE OF DEMOCRACY

The rise of democracy in Germany is being hailed all over the civilized world, but in the midst of our rejoicing in far-away America we should remember history. Suddenly emacipated people do not always realize what democracy means, and scenes akin to those in France at the close of the eighteenth century and in Russia recently are liable to be enacted in heretofore staid old Germany and Austria. Besides we should not forget the experience of our forefathers in this land of the free and the home of the brave at the close of the revolutionary war. Washington, Hamilton and other so-called federalists were often disheartened at certain acts and utterances in those days, and those who had the good of the country at heart often supposed they were nearing their ne plus ultra in efforts to keep the country together after peace had been declared and the indenpendence of the United States recognized by the nations of the earth. The formation of the American union was achieved mid much trouble and anxiety. Massachusetts and Virginia, it will be remembered, reserved the right to secede from the compact whenever those states thought such a movement would be in their interests, and state sovereignty was claimed up to the close of the civil war and is still believed in by many.

It has been said that the United States is composed in the main, of different people from those of Europe. This may, in a measure, be true, but we should not forget that America has long been the asylum of those supposing themselves to be oppressed, and many who reach our shores come with political principles we wish they had left behind.

During the Haymarket excitement in Chicago in 1886 a German socialist who had recently arrived in this country went to an acquaintance to bid good bye, as he said he was about to leave the country. Upon being asked why he desired to cut his visit short he replied: "Well, I see no difference in conditions here and those prevailing in the old world. Rich people over there enjoy their possessions, and the opulent here do likewise."

This "lover of liberty" supposed democracy meant the privilege of looting others.

Republicanism is now on the rampage in Germany as the curtain falls upon the war. It may raise its head in other European countries, and, like the Spanish flu, it may go elsewhere.

TO TEUTONIZE THE WORLD

Throughout his reign of a quarter of a century, the Kaiser had but one ambition—to "Teutonize" the world. He subordinated everything else, or made everything else fit in with his ambitions.

In 1871, Germany had no navy or merchant marine worthy the name. It was through the Kaiser's demands that both were raised to second place among the nations.

It was the same with the German army. The vast German military machine was actually the child of the Kaiser's ambition.

Because he taught and practiced the theory that only through military and naval supremacy could Germany arrive at "a place in the sun" the Kaiser became known as the 'war lord."

Although he forced out Bismarck, the iron chancellor, the Emperor followed Bismarck's teachings that only by the "mailed fist" could Germany live and grow.

His oft-repeated insistence that he ruled by divine right aided him in carrying out his polices. It tended to make his subjects, both high and low more subservient to his demands and whims. As the German empire grew from a population of 47,000,000 to 67,000,000 and to a place in the commercial world surpassing in some lines, even Great Britain, his influence and power increased.

In saving his mother's life when he was born, the main nerves of his left arm were so strained that the arm became shriveled and has hung useless ever since Since childhood he has had to use a specially made fork with a heavy edge that served as a knife as well.

One reason for his well-known dislike for his mother was laid to the operation which resulted in the loss of the use of his arm.

The Kaiser was the ninth monarch of the house of Hohenzollern. He was the third of that family to guide the destinies of the German empire. He married Princess Augusta Victoria, daughter of the Duke of Augustenburg, in 1881. He has six sons. He was crowned King of Prussia and Emperor of Germany June 5, 1888.

The crown prince, Friedrich Wilhelm, was born May 6, 1882. He was married in 1905 to Duchess Cecile of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. The crown prince aspired to become one of the great military leaders of history. His efforts were all dismal failures, he being charged particularly with the bloody and fruitless effort to reduce the Verdun fortress, and the failure of the series of German offensives which began in March this year.

The Kaiser prepared for war for forty years, building up a big army establishment and trying to build a fleet great enough to compete with that of Great Britain. His naval program caused the frantic building of more and bigger warships by the European nations, while his army policy produced a tension and an apprehension of war that was felt years before the present conflict began.

His remark to Ambassador Gerard "I will stand no nonsense from America after the War," showed his feelings toward the United States even before this country broke relations with Germany and declared war.

The Kaiser was born January 27, 1859. He is the grandson of Queen Victoria, and a cousin of King George.

WAR WORKERS TO STAY

Will be no Wholesale Dismissals Says Secretary Baker.

Government war workers will not be released wholesale even when the signing of the armistice is officially announced, according to Secretary Baker, Penrad Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board, and the Civil Service Commission.

Secretary Baker, in commenting on a former statement, assures the thousands of war workers in the National Capital that the war program of the Government has not been checked in the slightest by international developments. An immediate announcement of any change would be made, he said, upon official receipt of the signing of the armistice.

A statement issued by Chairman Baruch on the phase of peace as it concerns the war workers says:

"A committee named by the President is now at work to devise the best means of bringing about the readjustments from a war to a peace basis. The report of the committee may take the form of suggested legislation. The whole plan will be carried out with as little dislocation as possible."

A denial of any wholesale reduction at an early date, even if the war should end, is given by an official statement of the Civil Service Commission, which is in close touch with the labor situation in Washington.

WAR WORK OF ARMY NOW GREATER THAN IN WAR

New York, Nov. 11.—"The biggest work and the greatest opportunities of the United War Work agencies in France lie before and not behind them."

This statement was made here today by Dr. Nolan R. Best, well-known editor of "The Continent," who arrived in New York yesterday on his return from six months' service as a Y. M. C. A. worker with the American Expeditionary Forces.

"Britain and France," Dr. Best continued, "have been practically stripped of able bodied men in order to maintain their armies at full strength. On the other hand, the man power of the United States has, in comparison, only been touched. This means that the British and French must demobilize first in order to free the Tommies and poilus for the great tasks of reconstruction. The American forces, during this period, will have garrison duty to do all over Europe. In other words, for almost a year the Yanks will be needed as international police

"In addition to this it must be remembered that eighteen months have been required to get our boys to France. Their transportation was accomplished under tremedous pressure. It is inconceivable that they can be brought home in less time than two years. During all this period, the United War Work agencies will be indispensable.

"A soldier hit it right with a new definition of war. He said: 'War is damn dull, damn dirty and damn dangerous.'

"Americans at home, accustomed to having the glorious side of war played up, must not forget that perhaps the worst of the three is dulness. Fighting brings unbounded joy to the American soldiers heart, but the waiting periods are all but intolerable.

"If hostilities are suspended, the war will be less dirty and less dangerous for our men, but ten times more dull. Just here the United War Work agencies come in. America must think of these seven organizations, not alone as great morale-builders during the fighting period, but also as dispellers of dulness both during the waiting intervals and the months following the cessation of hostilities."

STRIP TOWNS OF FOOD

Hundreds In Evacuated Districts Died of Starvation, Says American Red Cross Worker.

Rome, Nov. 11.—Hundreds of persons died of starvation in the evacuated districts of Italy after the Austrians cut off their food supply just before the withdrawal, Major Lowell, of the American Red Cross, arriving from the war zone says. The situation is still critical.

"The food situation in the evacuated districts is appalling," Lowell said. "The populations who received daily rations from the Austrians were cut off from this source three days before the evacuation. Hundreds died as a result.

"We found sick and wounded Ietlians and Austrians who had been three days without food. In one town more than 100 had died of starvation, in another 150.

"Towns were absolutely stripped of everything in the way of food and clothing. The first day after the enemy withdrew we shipped into the liberated districts 13 carloads of supplies and medicines. Five left the next day. Our 20 rolling kitchens are feeding 60,000 people a day. Formerly they were attached to the American brigades, now they are attending to civilians.

"We have placed ourselves at the disposal of the Government for aiding in the relief of the occupied districts and are establishing additional warehouses."

NEWS OF THE DAY

"By Sunday our arms will have been laid down," said Maximilian Harden in a lecture at Berlin Saturday. "Common sense has triumphed."

Albert Ballin, general director of the Hamburg-American Steamship Company, died suddenly on Saturday, according to an announcement made in Berlin.

The Paris Temps today concludes a sketch of Friedrich Ebert, the new German chancellor, as follows: "He shares the ruling passion of the German. He is a type of pan-German socialist, not to say an imperialist."

According to a frontier message, Princess Heinrich, wife of the grandson of Ludwig III of Bavaria, was wounded in the arm when fired upon as she was fleeing from Munich. She and her husband are now hiding in southern Bavaria with Princess Adelheid, wife of Prince Adalbert, Emperor William's third son.

"A genuinely democratic German government assuredly would be accorded better peace terms," said Lord Robert Cecil, British undersecretary of foreign affairs yesterday. assuredly would be accorded better peace terms," said Lord Robert Cecil, British undersecretary of foreign affairs yesterday.

Prof. Lammasch, the Austrian premier, has received official notification, says a dispatch from Vienna, that Poland has assumed sovereignty over Galicia. Galicia is a crownland of Austria-Hungary north of the Carpathians. It has an area of 30,507 square miles, and in normal times had a population of some 7,000,000.

The Danish frontier is being strictly guarded by the German soldiers' council. This is being done it is stated, in order to prevent the escape of rich people, generals and other high officers. All national cockades and the eagle on the helmets of soldiers have been removed, being replaced by a red band. The wearing of the iron cross has been strictly prohibited.

Raymond Phillips, aged 17, son of Medford Phillips and Fred Parnell, a negro, of Berlin, Md., were instantly killed and three other negroes so badly injured they are not expected to survive, when the Ocean City flier struck the Phillips automobile near Parsonburg. Phillips took five colored men employed on the state road at Laurel, Del., Saturday evening, and was returning when the accident happened.

The former German cruiser Goeben, which, since it joined the Turkish naval forces, has been known as the Sultan Yumuz Selim, is now in Turkish control and will it is said be immediately interned. The Goeben was a unit of the former German Mediterranean fleet. In August, 1914, it made a successful dash for Turkish waters from the Adriatic. She is a cruiser of the Moltke type and displaces 22,625 tons. The principal battery of the vessel consists of 10 11-inch guns.

The officers and men of the 159th infantry brigade, Eightieth division, have been cited by General Albert Cronkhite for conspicuous gallantry in the taking of Sedan, according to information received in Blacksburg. In the citation Gen. George H. Jamerson, of Martinsville, and Major Jamon L. Montague, of Christiansburg, were mentioned as having taken and held their objectives. Gen. Jamerson and Major Montague are both Virginia Polytechnic men of the classes of 1893 and 1915, respectively.

While one of the Nauen wireless dispatches picked up yesterday by the American Navy Radio Service reported "officially" that the Western front was quiet yesterday, official reports from General Pershing and Field Marshal Haig announced not only had there been heavy artillery fire during the previous night on the west bank of the Meuse, but that Haig's armies had advanced yesterday between eight and twelve miles on a fifty-mile front, reaching the Franco-Belgian frontier south of the Sambre.

Two women who helped officers defend the barracks against the rebels in Hamburg were, it is said, beheaded by the "Reds" after the officers had been driven out by "stink bombs." Bands of revolutionaries are roving indiscriminately through Schleswig-Holstein, the correspondent adds. Travelers arriving in Denmark say they saw at each station they passed huge piles of rifles thrown away by deserting soldiers. Pictures of the Kaiser and Ludendorff were removed at all restaurants. Only pictures of Hindenburg were left hanging.

Drastic cutting of the revenue bill which will relieve the burden of taxation is forecast by the approach of peace. Republicans and Democrats are working along the same line with the viewpoint of bringing about a saner application of taxes. Application of taxes will be made less drastic and at the same time there will be a rigid pruning of expenditures. Expenditures will be investimated and extravagance, which may have found its way in the excess of war enthusiasm will find no place in the calmer discussions that will prevail now that the war menace appears to be passing.

VIRGINIA NEWS

—Three enlisted men at Camp Lee two of them negroes, all of whom claimed that they had religious objections to participating in war, were were Saturday given sentences of ten years each for refusing to obey the orders of Captain Jesse Smith, their superior officer.

George W. Stautamyer, of Mount Solon, Frederick county, is now sleeping with the bed covering over his head, because of an attack made upon him by rats. He was awakened early in the morning by blood trickling down his cheek, and as he sat up in bed he saw a huge rat jump off the bed and make for a hole in the floor. The rat had bitten through one nostril.

The pink nose of a small white poodle sticking through a small opening in a large pasteboard box in the negro coach of a Southern railway train attracted the attention of Deputy Marshal Chappelle. The official was surprised that a little puppy could get his nose out of a hole which was more than 30 inches from the bottom. He began to inquire as to the ownership of the dog, but no one would claim him. He then opened the box and found the dog was standing on four quarts of liquor. Chapelle confiscated the liquor and when the conductor refused to take charge of the puppy, brought the box, four quarts and poodle to the marshal's office in Lynchburg. The deputy marshal got a hurry call out of the city and left the poodle in the marshal's office. The puppy was given the run of the room, turned over a quart of liquor, breaking the bottle. The dog must have liked the taste of the liquor, for he lapped himself into a riproaring drunk.

The Self Imposed Duty

The parents of the lads who [illegible] fighting forces since the beginning of time—the American Army and Navy—have spent countless millions to raise these boys to the fighting age.

Uncle Sam is now spending billions to keep them, but he cannot give them the home influence and comforts to which they have been accustomed—that is not included in the war program. He feeds them well on solid food, pays them and equips them with the most modern war tools, cares for them when wounded and does many other things But it is still up to the "family" to furnish the extras, such as smokes, chocolate, athletics, and those huts kept homelike by the women workers, in which the boy finds good books, entertainments, cheer, letter paper, beds, bath, information, physical, mental or spiritual comforts, games, lectures, encouragement: in fact, everything that will make him forget his troubles and keep him from being lonesome or homesick. The atmosphere in these huts keeps the boy human and sidetracks his mind from the perfect hell of battle. This is the first war where all this could be done. But it is Possible Now—and this necessary, beneficial sort of comfort and help follows your boy from the fireside of his own home to the shell holes in No Man's Land, and even to the enemy prisons

Think of those boys—our own flesh and blood—2,000,000 strong, 3,000 miles from home in a strange land, fighting and dying in the world's severest war storm, out in the rain of liquid fire, shrapnel and a thousand tons of high explosive bullets of steel, with the thundering of the air bombs and bursting cannon shells overhead, and the atmosphere poisoned by deadly gases! Could the imagination paint a more terrifying and dangerous thing for a human being to face and be expected to live through, two years of it for Americans? Two million more soldiers are being called and trained. The whole four million and more are willing to fight and die that we may never fall within the clutch of a selfish, master monster who seeks to conquer the world by brutally crushing all the good in it—simply for personal glory and greed.

That's what those boys have promised and are making good, and it is as little as we individually can do to put up enough money to permit the seven War Working Organizations—The Jewish Welfare Board, Salvation Army, Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., War Camp Community Service and American Library Association to continue their unparalleled accomplishments in this country and abroad among the men and women in the service. These agencies are in every corner of the earth where there is a soldier to be cared for, rendering a service that switches the boy's mind from the bullets, blood and horror of war to the things he was used to at home.

The United War Work Campaign

IS A DRIVE TO SECURE $170,500,000, OF WHICH VIRGINIA'S QUOTA IS $1,500,000, BETWEEN NOVEMBER 11th AND 18th.

This money will be divided proportionately between the seven organizations to carry on their work of supplying that factor, Morale, which increases the fighting strength 10 per cent.

You should solemnly impose upon yourself the duty of liberally contributing to this fund through your local committee for those boys whose contribution is life itself, if needed; that their country and yours will remain one of peace, freedom and plenty. Every $50 gives one soldier all these necessary extras for one year Your response to this call will show how highly you value your boy's welfare, now that he is away fighting for you!

Don't Let This Peace Talk Stop You

Don't let this peace talk and allied success keep you from contributing to this fund—the work of these seven organizations will be needed more than ever the first two years after the fighting stops. Demobilization creates more dangers to the soldier's well being than actual warfare—the boy must be strengthened against new temptations.

LETTER FROM FRANCE

Alexandrian Describes Conditions on the Firing Line in France.

Park Tarcil, of this city, has sent to his mother an interesting and thrilling account of his experience while in active service with the American Expeditionary Force in France. He says:

"To say that we are in hell is putting it mildly. All descriptions of hell, that I have read, from Dante's Inferno to the Bible are pinkteas as compared with this. We are a part of a French division and are a part of an army that is commanded by one of the most famous generals of France. We are in the front line trenches and have been on the offensive for a week. We are fighting the famous Prussian Guards and they are demons. The Red Cross men are killed off whenever they expose themselves to machine gun fire. Yesterday one of our Medical Corps men was helping a Frenchman to carry a litter across on open stretch of land, a German. Aviator flew down from the skies and killed the Frenchman. He flew back to see if he had finished the job but our man had flattened out under a bush. I recite this case to show that no quarter is given and no mercy shown. Our men have been over the top several times and have lost many, killed and wounded. Some of our officers and a number of our men have been cited for the Croix de Guerre.

The battlefield is covered with the bodies of the dead from all sides, and every nationality. They are in all stages of decomposition, and the air is filled with the foulest stench imaginable. It is a common thing to jump into a shell hole—out of the way of gun fire, only to find a rotting Hun, or Senegalese, Frenchman or American already in full and odoriferous possession of said hole. I myself, have done this more than once and did not find my hole mate unbearable: at least not untill the shellfire had passed on. At first the nights were hideous. The bursting shells falling among us and our own artillery keeping up a din that no one can describe. We have had many men gassed for the Huns throw one gas shell for every five of the others. The Mustard gas is the most fatal. It is almost absolutely lethal, in even the smallest quantities. Death awaits him who forgets his gas mask or helmet. There are many kinds of gases, but the mustard is the most deadly. When my work is over I go to my dug out which is about twenty-five feet under ground. Aside from being the regiments dentist, I have been appointed assistant to the Surgeon and sanitary inspector. The latter duty carries with it the burial of men, horses and mules, inspecting dugouts and draining stagnant water from the dugout. It isn't a very pleasant job but there is nothing pleasant about any job in this sector.

There are no more towns left in this sector for as the Huns retreat they blow up and bombard everything that rises above the level of the earth. It is hard for one, who has not seen to believe just how dirty and contemptible the Hun is. He is the first to squeal 'Kamarad!" when things are going against him, but the last one on earth to have mercy on the defenseless. I wish I could send you some Hun souvenirs. The Prussian Guards are the ones that wear the silver ring and are called the 'Kaiser's Own" etc. On their helmets, belt buckles and rings appear the legend "Gott Mittiens." So far the Lord has been with me for other than a cold I am well and satisfied. I say satisfied, for I imagine before I left America what would be our fare. It is worse than any human can imagine, but I am still living and well, try to continue to "carry on" until the "job" is finished. Please give my love to all and pray for my safe return."
